EUROPE

Hailed variously as “the king of life sciences” and “the best in England without question”, Ian Dodds-Smith of Arnold & Porter LLP emerges as one of the most respected practitioners at the life sciences bar. Dodds-Smith leads A&P’s European product liability group and is co-head of the food, drug and medical devices practice. His impressive client list includes Pharmacia, St Jude Medical, Sanofi-Pasteur and Monsanto. Regulatory expert Lincoln Tsang also earns praise at the firm’s London office. Rowan Freeland is the “leading name” at Simmons & Simmons in London, having acted for Conor Medsystems and CoreValve in recent matters. Richard Binns, Mark Curtis and Kevin Mooney are also recommended in the UK capital, while across the Channel in Paris Jacques-Antoine Robert is “excellent” for product liability and disputes work. Pierre Véron of Véron & Associés is considered “first class” for patent litigation and a “leading light” of the Paris bar. At the same firm Isabelle Romet and Sabine Agé are also noted for their IP disputes work.

Bert Oosting heads the pharmaceuticals and IP and information technology groups in the Amsterdam office of Lovells LLP and is one of the firm’s “top” names. In Düsseldorf, Andreas von Falck specialises in IP litigation and counselling for clients in the pharmaceutical, medical devices and hi-tech sectors and counts Eli Lilly among his major clients. German product liability practice leader and global head of Lovells’ life sciences team Ina Brock, in the Munich office, is a prominent name with substantial experience of multiparty litigation in Europe, Asia, Africa and The Middle East. Ewa Rutkowska heads the life sciences and product liability practice of Lovells’ Warsaw office and advises numerous international clients doing work in Poland. Competition and pharmaceuticals expert Bozena Ciosek, of Eversheds LLP, and pharmaceutical litigation specialist Wojciech Kozłowski, of Salans, are also well regarded in Warsaw.
